"Last Roundup" Before Thanksgiving

An abundant turkey crop for 1946 promises that the nation will observe Thanksgiving in the established tradition. But not every family will dine on a gobbler chosen "on the hoof." Pretty Marlyas Pascoe, of Detroit, Mich., made sure of her selection by driving her new Chevrolet out to Shady Valley Farms, one of the largest turkey farms in the country, where Orville M. Felmlee assisted in the selection.

Berlin Youths Learn to Play

American Soldiers Teaching Boys and Girls Games; They Like Baseball.

BERLIN. — Between 50,000 and 60,000 Berlin youngsters, aged 6 to 18, have a date every Friday with the American soldiers. They gather on 24 playing fields in the American sector of the city for an afternoon of supervised play.

They are instructed by hundreds of American soldiers who regard themselves as teachers of democracy as well as sports coaches and their task as one of the most constructive contributions to the allied occupation.

The Berlin program—unmatched by any other occupying power—is part of a German youth activities program started by Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, theater commander, with this pronouncement:

"This is an extremely important job, perhaps more important than any other one job we can do today. Other things we must do, such as denazification and deindustrialization of Germany, are negative. This is a positive action."

Former Football Player.

Take it from the man who heads the program, it's also a lot of fun. He is Maj. Emmette O. Huff, tall, soft-spoken and 40, of Greenwood, S. C. Huff, who weighs 190 pounds, still is about as rugged and certainly as enthusiastic as when he played guard and tackle at the University of Georgia (1925-27) and served as line coach at the University of Miami (1936-39).

Huff, athletic officer of special services at the United States army's Berlin district headquarters, has the soldiers of 30 troop units working in his program. This was started with the co-operation of German officials from each borough [illegible] and sisters and teammates, German boys and girls were given a program of baseball, softball, tennis, volleyball, horseshoe pitching, badminton and ping pong. The youngest children play group games with prizes for the winners.

They Like Baseball.

There had been organized baseball schools for months on some Berlin fields. These were started after German youngsters had hung around G.I. fields, chasing by balls and carrying bats for the players. When supervised play started, attendance boomed. Kids are welcome from the Russian, British and French sectors of the city and baseball's fame is spreading around the town.

"The kids are thirsty for it," Huff says. "It's been a long time since they've had any opportunity for competitive play, and they like the friendly, big brother attitude of our soldiers. They are catching on well to American games, particularly softball. We also expect to give them American football, but this will have hard going against soccer.

"Troops aiding in the program also seem to enjoy participation. I think it's one of the most important things we can do in the occupation. We not only combat mischief, but also show the youth our way of life through sports."

Rising Wave of Crime in Germany Is Plaguing AMG

BERLIN. — American military government says the U. S. occupation zone of Germany is being plagued by a rising wave of crime, and gang lawlessness and violence is particularly heavy in Bavaria and Greater Hesse.

Both Germans and displaced persons have been among the offenders.

An AMG report said that in Greater Hesse there have been 8,389 reported violations, of which one-half were thefts. Of this number 28 per cent involved food.

The report added that in four incidents of gang lawlessness displaced persons were implicated.

In Bavaria, the report continued, "criminal activities of displaced persons constitute an important law and order problem." During one week there, 43 crimes involved displaced persons — including four homicides.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving remembrance of our daughter, Polly Mae Williamson, who left us one year ago today, Nov. 14, 1945.
Today brings sad memories,
Of a sad and dreadful day;
When a message came to us,
That Polly had passed away.
No one knows how we miss her,
No one knows the bitter pain;
We have suffered since we lost you
Life has never been the same.
You left behind some broken hearts
That love you so sincere.
That never did or ever will
Forget you, Polly dear.
—Sadly missed by Father and Mother and little Sister.
